Linux System Programming Assignment 5

Note :
1. Every assignment should be placed in separate folder
2. Every folder of assinment contains
      One file which contains our program
      One makefile to compile our application
      One readme file which contains description
3. Every input should be accepted using command line.

----

1. Write a program which writes structure in file. Structure should contains information of Employee.

2. Write a program which accept file name from user which contains information of employee , we have to read all contents of that file.

3.   Write a program which accept directory name from user and write information of all regular file in and then read the contents from that file.

4.   Write a program which accept directory name from user and combine all contents of file from that directory into one file named as AllCombine.

5.   Write a program which accept file name which contains data of all file. We have to create all file again.